Morgan Kiely, then 19, had been drinking wine and 'relaxing' at Clacton beach in Essex with a friend, Stevie Steel, alongside her young son Harry Kiely on July 13, 2022. However as they drove away, the car rolled and ended up on its roof - sending Harry flying from his seat through an open window. The baby boy tragically died later that night from 'unsurvivable' injuries sustained from the crash, including a skull fracture. This is the column I was almost too embarrassed to write: I woke up this morning in the wrong bed - the wrong hospital bed, that is. The 27-year-old actor, who has also starred in a string of hit movies, will appear at Thames Magistrates' Court on Thursday, August 28. Conor McGregor was blissfully unaware that his 2million Dublin pub was about to go up in flames, as he spent quality time with his fiancé Dee Devlin and their kids on a luxury yacht holiday in Sardinia, just hours before the incident. The Irish MMA fighter, 37, has been embroiled in controversy after being photographed kissing a mystery brunette woman on a beach in Fort Lauderdale. Looking back, it was love at first sight. Aged 23 and having barely travelled, I still vividly recall that first airport transfer from Dalaman to Kalkan: the widescreen landscapes with the gargantuan peaks of the Taurus mountains cloaked in jade-green forest, a narrow ribbon of road winding between. Back then, Turkey was an unusual summer holiday choice. Thirty years on it's become a firm British favourite, with 4.4 million of us drawn to its glorious scenery, fantastic food and alluring warmth - both of weather and personality. Ruby Barney Britton, from Oxford, Oxfordshire, shared a behind-the-scenes look at her daily life as a stay-at-home wife in a TikTok on her page @rubybarneybritton as she deep-cleaned her trailer. Her cleaning marathon began with the oven, which she said took 'all day', Rube moved on to the fridge. Next, she tackled the food cupboards, side drawers, shoe storage, and even her supplies closet. comments 5 shares Traveller wife gives glimpse inside her spotless home The expulsion of dozens of teenage passengers from a jet in Spain amid reports they were endangering the safety of the flight has sparked a row, with the carrier coming under fire for alleged anti-Semitism. The holiday camp the children were flying with has now accused Vueling of brutality and filed a complaint against the airline. Some 44 French-Jewish students aged between 10 and 15 and several adults were escorted off Vueling flight V8166 as it waited on the tarmac at Valencia airport yesterday ahead of its return to Paris. Footage shared to social media appeared to show one adult member of the group being detained by Spanish civil guard officers in the walkway shortly after she was removed from the jet. Police Constable Zachary Marsden had 'defied protocol, ethics, procedure and the law' in the confrontation inn the pay station area of Terminal Two at Manchester airport last July, the jury was told. The trial at Liverpool Crown Court has heard PC Marsden along with PCs Ellie Cook and Lydia Ward were involved in the fracas with brothers Mohammed Amaaz, 20, and Muhammed Amaad, 26. The violent clash was sparked when the officers tried to arrest Amaaz for an earlier assault on a man at the Slabucks caf inside the terminal, the jury has been told. CCTV and mobile footage which included PC Marsden kicking Amaaz in the head and stamping on him has been played several times in the four-week trial. Chloe Gardner, defending Amaad, told the jury in her closing speech the CCTV was without sound and was like 'a jigsaw puzzle' with the prosecution asking the jury 'to guess the final picture'. SamSmith is known to push the boundaries of fashion with their range of looks. And the singer turned heads as they opted for a floor-length navy dress as they enjoyed a cigarette outside The Cow pub in Notting Hill on Thursday. Featuring flared sleeves and a scooped neckline, Sam flashed the array of inkings on their chest as they chatted with a friend. Equestrian boss Guy Simmonds, 37, and fellow rider Lauren Jarvis, 26, allegedly engaged in the sexual act with the 16-year-old schoolgirl in January last year. Simmonds, who described himself as 'daddy' in messages sent to the youngster, would also use a horse trailer to have sex with her while his own girlfriend was away, a court has heard. Prior to the alleged threesome which took place at Jarvis' home, the pair exchanged messages to hatch their plan, with the equestrian boss asking Jarvis when he should 'pop over' for a threesome. Simon Bailey, 58, who was previously praised for his bravery, was handed a warning and downgraded after using the 'sexist' word by Avon Fire and Rescue Service American WWE wrestler Hulk Hogan has died of a heart attack decades after taking steroids-was there a connection? This Morning viewers have praised Olivia Attwood as she made her debut on the ITV show - and confessed that she made co-host Dermot O'Leary 'look like a first time presenter'. The former Love Island star, 37, was first announced as a host for the summer breakback in June. On Friday she made her first appearance on the sofa with her co-star Dermot - and many fans have rushed to X, formerly known as Twitter, to praise the documentary maker for her presenting skills. Charlee Hill, from Oxford, snorted her first line of cocaine at 21 while enjoying a night out with friends 10 years ago. The mother-of-one admitted her habit began as a 'social' activity before Charlee (pictured inset and right) began using the drug alone as an energy boost to get through the day. Now, Charlee is warning others to steer clear of the party drug for fear of falling into a lifelong addiction. One shocking photo (pictured left) shows Charlee enduring one of her daily nose bleeds due to the sheer quantity of cocaine she was using. comments 16 shares My 1,000-a-week cocaine addiction nearly killed me Sydney Sweeney sparked backlash with her latest ad campaignwhich supports victims of domestic violence - after it was branded 'gross' and 'tone deaf' for being focused 'all about her boobs'. The actress, 27, launched her new collaboration with American Eagle this week, titled 'Sydney Sweeney Has Great Jeans', and modelled her own designs in a racy photo shoot. Proceeds from the clothing line are going to charity - but the Euphoria actress divided opinion with a suggestive joke made about her chest in a clip promoting the initiative. Tamzin Outhwaite has revealed her eldest child is transgender. The actress, 54, is mother to Florence, 17, and Marnie, 12, with her ex-husband Tom Ellis who she split from in 2014. But in an appearance on the Parenting Hell podcast, Tamzin told how her eldest child now goes by 'Flo' and identifies as a boy. Oore Fabunmi, 25, was flying from the Dominican Republic to London Gatwick on a TUI flight on Sunday, June 29 when she said that the man seated in front of her ran towards the front of the aircraft. Ms Oore then said she heard screams begin to erupt from terrified passengers at the front of the plane as the man made a frantic attempt at opening the cabin doors. The confused passenger watched on as fellow travellers onboard tried to halt the man from opening the doors, immediately alerting staff to the incident. EXCLUSIVE: A married deputy headteacher at a prestigious all-girls' school embarked on a secret two-year affair with an art teacher - with the pair locking themselves into school cupboards for their illicit encounters. Liyarna Beamish, 39, was deputy head at Ribston Hall High School, a selective grammar school in Gloucestershire, when she began a clandestine relationship with colleague Gareth Collins, 45. The pair regularly engaged in sexual intercourse in the school's art room and locked supply cupboards, including during school hours while pupils were nearby. Both Mrs Beamish and Mr Collins were banned from the profession by the teaching watchdog for unacceptable professional conduct. This is the gut-wrenching moment a British mother broke down in tears after inspecting the smouldering remains of her family's villa in Cyprus. Lucy Armstrong and her husband Ben have told how they were forced to flee with their toddler as flames engulfed their villa during the raging wildfires that killed two people and destroyed swathes of homes. The couple had been living in their dream home in the quiet village of Souni for four years. They married last October and were settling into family life with their three-year-old son, Ethan. But this week, their entire world was turned upside down. A series of freak storms have struck popular Spanish tourist hotspots turning roads into powerful rivers while hail has lashed down and turned streets white. Dramatic footage shows dirty water gushing down streets and into houses in Murcia, southeastern Spain , while enormous grey clouds tower over the province. The Murcia region has been badly hit and in the city of Caravaca de la Cruz, a major pilgrimage site, golf-sized hail balls smashed down on cars. Up to 20 residents from the city were evacuated and spent the night in a municipal sports pavilion, while 17 people were evacuated to a pavilion in Caravaca, according to local reports . Muhammad Zakariya Ayyoub al-Matouq is photographed, spine and ribs exposed, in his mother's arms in the bare tent they now share in Gaza City. Aged 18 months, the stark reality of the war is all he has ever known. Heis said to have dropped from nine kilograms to just six - half the weight of a healthy child his age. These harrowing images, taken by journalist Ahmed al-Arini, featured in the pages of newspapers around the world this week, a poignant reminder of the human toll of the conflict as leaders debate the sense in continuing peace talks. For many people, 2012 remains one of the most memorable summers on record. Andy Murray, Usain Bolt and Mo Farah all made history with gold wins at the Olympics. Fun had a hit with We Are Young and Boris Johnson got stuck on a zip wire in Victoria Park while waving union flags. But perhaps most iconic of all was the Queen's surprise cameo alongside Daniel Craig in the Olympics opening ceremony, which took place 13 years ago this week. And while the Queen's royal dresser, Angela Kelly, was initially given credit for persuading Her Majesty to take part, it was a different member of the Royal Household who was brave enough to ask the 96-year-old to 'jump out of a helicopter'. Royal author Valentine Low wrote in his 2022 book Courtiers that Edward Young, who worked as deputy private secretary, was associated with 'three of the greatest triumphs' of the Queen's latter years: her Diamond Jubilee, her state visit to Ireland, and her appearance at the London 2012 Olympic Games. Published: 04:02 BST, 17 October 2024 | Updated: 08:06 BST, 18 October 2024 King Charles III and Queen Camilla will touch down in Sydney on Friday for their first tour of a Commonwealth nation since the monarch's coronation. The importance of the trip is underlined by the fact King Charles will be halting his concert treatment to make the journey, but it also means the itinerary will be less jam-packed for the 75-year-old than some of his previous 16 visits to Australia. Only those in NSW and the ACT will be able to attend public events. After arriving on Friday evening the royal couple will spend the weekend in Sydney before heading to Canberra. Monday, October 21 The first scheduled public engagement will from 12:35pm on Monday at the Australian War Memorial in Canberra where they will visit the For Our Country Memorial. Those wishing to attend need to be there no later than 11:45am to avoid road closures and to allow for security screening. From 1pm people will be able to see the royal couple at Parliament House, with members of the public advised to arrive no later than 12.10 to again allow for road closures and security measures. King Charles III is set to land in Sydney on Friday for his first trip to Australia since being crowned monarch. Tuesday, October 22 The royals will greet crowds at the Opera House forecourt at 4.20pm with the entry point to the Sydney Opera House precinct open from 3pm. From 4.50pm King Charles and Camilla will visible on the Man O'War Steps, the historic jetty near the Opera House, as they review the Royal Australian Navy fleet and defence force flyover. The best vantage points to see this are Farm Cove, the Royal Botanic Gardens, and Mrs Macquarie's Chair. Read More Road closures will be in effect from 3:50pm. Other engagements In other private engagements King Charles will tour the National Botanic Gardens on Black Mountain in Canberra. He will have a meeting with CSIRO scientists researching the impact of bushfires and the resilience of the environment. Camilla will meet family and domestic violence advocates and representatives from the organisation GIVIT, which helps distribute donations across a range of charities. After the fleet inspection, King Charles and Camilla will attend a community barbecue. Australians of the Year Georgina Long and Richard Sculley will meet the King to discuss their world-leading research on cancer treatments. King Charles will meet Aboriginal leaders to discuss culture and community. The importance of the trip is underlined by the fact King Charles will be halting his cancer treatment to make the journey, but it also means the itinerary will be less jam-packed for the 75-year-old than some of his previous 16 visits to Australia. Meanwhile, the Queen will visit a Sydney library and meet students participating in a series of writing workshops. The couple will later attend another community barbecue in Parramatta hosted by the New South Wales premier which will showcase local produce. Following his short visit to Australia the King will fly to Samoa on Wednesday for the Commonwealth Heads of Government Meeting and will return to the UK on October 26. Previous visits King Charles III has been to Australia 16 times. The first visit was in 1966 where at the age 17 he completed two terms as an exchange student at Timbertop, Geelong Grammar School, in Victoria. A particularly memorable incident happened in 1979 when then-Prince Charles was taking a morning dip at Perth's Cottesloe Beach, but was taken by surprise when Jane Priest, a bikini-clad 26-year-old model, grabbed his shoulders to plant a kiss on his cheek. In 1983, he came to show off his newly married wife Princess Diana, with Aussies completely caught up in Di-mania. His most recent visit was in 2018 when he opened the Gold Coast Commonwealth Games on behalf of Queen Elizabeth II. How is King Charles' health? King Charles was diagnosed with an undisclosed form of cancer in February following prostate surgery and has been receiving weekly treatment ever since. He will be undergoing treatment right up until he flies with his doctors, who are reportedly content for it to be paused briefly while he is away. Immediately on returning to the UK he will resume treatment when he returns to the UK. Published: 02:56 BST, 18 October 2024 | Updated: 13:18 BST, 18 October 2024 Donald and Melania Trump parried together at the Al Smith dinner in New York City smiling and looking happy. The dinner is a longstanding tradition to support Catholic charities around the city and has been frequented many times by presidential candidates. Melania was seen wearing a sophisticated tuxedo-like suit next to Donald who was looking dapper in a similar tuxedo ensemble. The former first lady was seen smiling and posing alongside her hubby who is just weeks away from Election Day. Former first lady Melania Trump arrives for the 79th annual Alfred E. Smith Memorial Foundation Dinner, Thursday, Oct. 17, 2024, in New York. Melania and Donald smile from ear to ear at the dinner. Images of the Trumps at the dinner show them socializing with top politicians and stars. Melania and Donald were seen chatting closely at times and in deep discussion at their table. When the former president entered the room he raised his fist, commanding attention. Melania stood next to him, right at his side, as he took in cheers of approval. It is a rare appearance for the ex-first lady who has not been seen with her husband on the campaign trail since this summer. After not having been spotted alongside her husband since the Republican National Convention in July, some questions had been raised about her decision to stay away from his campaign. Melania stands with a dazzling smile in a black suit jacket. The Trumps were seen smiling together at the dinner. President Donald Trump and his wife Melania Trump lower their heads in prayer during the annual Alfred E. Smith Foundation Dinner at the New York Hilton Midtown on October 17, 2024. Since Donald announced his candidacy she has only been spotted at a few rallies and events. Read More Melania has been in the headlines recently though for her book which released October 8. The memoir, titled 'Melania' features excerpts on abortion rights and her life as first lady. She is also selling a collector's edition which features hundreds of photos she took while living in the White House. The Al Smith dinner is an annual fundraiser for Catholic charities and has hosted major presidential candidates since John F. Kennedy first attended in the 1960s. Democratic presidential nominee Kamala Harris was invited to attend but she chose not to. Donald and Melania appeared deep in conversation at times. Trump waved to the crowd receiving applause while Melania cracked a smile. When the announcement came that Harris 'cannot make it here in person' and that instead the audience 'will be joined by her later via video' the crowd began to boo. Videos show the boo breaking out just seconds after the announcement was made. Trump called it 'disrespectful' that Harris did not attend. He also joked that the last Democrat that did not attend the dinner was Walter Mondale, who lost the election in a landslide to Ronald Reagan. House Speaker Mike Johnson, Senate Majority Leader Chuck Schumer, D-N.Y., Robert F. Kennedy Jr., and embattled NYC Mayor Eric Adams are all in attendance. Notably, RFK Jr. was spotted with his wife Cheryl Hines after it was revealed he was caught up in an affair with journalist Olivia Nuzzi weeks ago.
