Reading Time: 3 minutes Jessica Alba and Cash Warren reunited on Sunday. Months after beginning the divorce process, the couple appeared in smiling family photos. Alongside their three beautiful children, you might almost think that nothing has changed. (But it did, right?) The 43-year-old actress and her 46-year-old ex smiled while posing outdoors with their shared children. Alba would later share a video of Hayes hunting in the yard for eggs, an Easter tradition, alongside his sisters. The two had been married for sixteen years. Their overall relationship has lasted more like two decades. Alba cited irreconcilable differences in her filing. That vague label means that this, like most divorces, is a no-fault divorce, a voluntary dissolution of a marriage. Though she is still known professionally as Jessica Alba, she altered her legal name when she married Warren. As part of her divorce filing, she seeks to restore her legal name to Jessica Marie Alba. Jessica Alba arrived at the 2025 Vanity Fair Oscar Party with a quiet confidence that only a seasoned style icon can command. Opting for a custom Dolce & Gabbana gown, she embraced classic Hollywood glamour with a modern, structured silhouette—sleek yet undeniably feminine. Her refined accessories elevated the look: a pair of Buccellati Ghirlanda and Rombi white gold rings, their delicate diamond detailing catching the light with every movement. She carried a Dolce & Gabbana Small Marlene shoulder bag in black, an effortlessly chic companion to the ensemble. Completing the look were Christian Louboutin's Miss Z pumps, a subtle yet powerful nod to timeless elegance. Alba's approach to red carpet dressing remains consistent—polished, thoughtful, and never overcomplicated. In a sea of maximalist statements, her choice of restrained luxury felt refreshing, proving that true style is about presence, not excess. How do you think Jessica Alba's refined aesthetic influences red carpet fashion today? Do you see minimalism making a stronger return? The 2025 Cannes Film Festival has been keeping fans fed with a sartorial parade of red carpet elegance, but Jessica Alba brought just as much glamour to France's nearby Cap d'Antibes on Thursday night. While making an appearance at the Red Sea Film Foundation's "Women In Cinema" Gala, the entrepreneur swapped out her recent bikini streak for an Old Hollywood style moment. Alba stunned in a plunging strapless LBD with a sculptural bodice and royal family-coded statement jewelry while posing at the Hotel du Cap-Eden-Roc. Alba—who filed for divorce from ex-husband Cash Warren in December after 16 years of marriage—continued to show off her single life glow-up as she stunned at the gala. She revamped the classic LBD with a structured asymmetrical bodice, which featured 3D ruffles and rosettes that gave the strapless dress a sculptural feel. A slit on her right side broke up the dress's column silhouette and flashed her pointy-toed black heels. Jessica Alba at the Red Sea Film Foundation's "Women In Cinema" Gala. Alba, who spoke at the event, accessorized with a diamond pendant necklace with a large ruby-colored stone, a diamond cocktail ring, and large diamond stud earrings. She leaned into an Old Hollywood beauty moment by wearing her caramel-highlighted brown hair in an elegant side-parted style with bombshell curls.
