Second grade essentials for social studies (everything book)

Last Updated on March 24, 2021 We've all done it. We've gone out and bought useless gadgets that we don't really need, just because they seemed really cool at the time. Then, we are stuck with a bunch of junk, and end up tossing it or trying to sell it on Ebay.On the other hand, there are some pretty awesome tech inventions that are actually useful. For instance, many of the latest home gadgets do some of your work for you, from adjusting the home thermostat to locking your front door. And, if used as designed, these tools should really help to make your life a lot easier—and that's not just a claim from some infomercial trying to sell you yet another useless gadget. Take a look at some of the most popular “smart gadgets” on the market:1. Smart Door Locks A smart lock lets you lock and unlock your doors by using your smartphone, a special key fob, or biometrics. These locks are keyless, and much more difficult for intruders to break into, making your home a lot safer. You can even use a special app to let people into your home if you are not there to greet them. 2. Smart Kitchen Tools Wouldn't you just love to have a pot of coffee waiting for you when you get home from work? What about a “smart pan” that tells you exactly when you need to flip that omelet? From meat thermometers to kitchen scales, you'll find a variety of “smart” gadgets designed to make culinary geeks salivate.3. Mini Home Speaker Play:1 If you love big sound, but hate how much space big speakers take up, and if you want a stereo system that is no bigger than your fist, check out the Play:1 mini speaker. All you have to do is plug it in, connect, and then you can stream without worrying about any interruptions or interface. You can even add onto it, and have different music playing in different rooms. 4. Wi-Fi Security Cameras These are the latest in home security, and they connect to the Wi-Fi in your home. You can use your mobile devices to monitor what is going on in your home at all times, no matter where you are. Options include motion sensors, two-way audio, and different recording options.5. Nest ThermostatThis is a thermostat that lives with you. It can sense seasonal changes, temperature changes, etc., and it will adjust itself automatically. You will never have to fiddle with a thermostat dial or keypad again, because this one basically does all of the work for you. It can also help you to save as much as 12% on heating bills, and 15% on cooling bills. 6. Smart Lighting Control your home lighting from your remote device. This is great if you are out and want to make sure that there are some lights on. It is designed to be energy efficient, so it will pay for itself over time because you won't have to spend so much on your monthly energy bills.7. Google Chromecast Ultra Whether you love movies, television shows, music, etc., you can stream it all using Google Chromecast Ultra. Stream all of the entertainment you love in up to 4K UHD and HDR, for just $69 monthly.8. Canary This home security system will automatically contact emergency services when they are needed. This system offers both video and audio surveillance, so there will be evidence if there are any break-ins on your property. You can also use it to check up on what's happening at home when you are not there, including to make sure the kids are doing their homework.Featured photo credit: Karolina via kaboompics.com Your class schedule changes year after year, but the study skills necessary for success always remain the same. Whether your upcoming test is tomorrow or in two months, these study tips for better grades will put you on track for academic success. Educational theorists have discovered something you might already know: people learn in different ways. You may be a kinesthetic learner who learns best by doing, a visual learner who prefers to pick up information by reading a textbook, or an auditory learner who retains information presented orally. Not sure about your learning style? Take our learning style quiz to identify your best study environment. Then, find out how to tailor your habits to suit the way you learn. Everyone studies differently. Are you distracted by noise or motivated by upbeat background music? Do you need to take breaks or do you work best when you can focus for several hours at a time? Do you study better in a group or by yourself? By answering these and other questions, you can create a study space that works for you. Of course, not everyone is able to design an ideal study space, so we've also provided strategies for studying in small spaces. It's never too late to break bad study habits. Read up on the most common bad study habits and learn how to replace them with smart, science-backed strategies. Plus, discover techniques for staying focused during a study session, which will lay a solid foundation for future success. Whether you have just a few minutes to prep for your vocabulary quiz or months to prepare for the SAT, you'll need to know how to establish a workable study schedule. After all, a last-minute cram session should be structured differently than a multi-day study calendar. No matter how much time you have to study, these strategies will help you make the most of it. Multiple choice, fill-in-the-blank, open book — every type of test brings its own unique challenges. Naturally, each one of these test types warrants a unique set of study strategies. That's why we've assembled study techniques for the different types of tests you're most likely to encounter.
