Or maybe you have someone in your life whos always begging to play Monopoly fan looking to own it all? always dreamed of. You already know the rules, so all you have to do is pick a theme and create your Monopoly board and playing piecesand with this comprehensive guide, you can make your own by following the simple set of steps below! Choose a unique theme for your game and design board spaces to match.Draw or print your spaces onto an 18in 18in (460mm 460mm) piece of paper.Paste the paper onto cardboard or an old Monopoly board.Make the Realty, Chance, and Community Chest cards.Make custom Monopoly currency or reuse the original dollars.Build your game tokens out of air-dry clay or reuse items from around the house.1Think of a unique theme for your game. Monopoly is easily customized, and all you need is an idea to get started. You can think globally, like making an ocean-themed Monopoly, or personally, like one based on a friend or the town you live in. Whatever theme you choose, name the game using the Monopoly formula, like Dog-opoly or Elvis-opoly. [1] Be careful not to be too specific. If your theme isn't broad enough, you might not have enough options to fill out all of the railroad spaces or Community Chest cards without compromising the overall theme. If youre making the game as a gift, choose a theme that relates to an interest of the recipient or just make a game that totally revolves around them! For example, you could make a game for your friend Michael called Michael-opoly and design the whole board to feature important things from his life. 2Plan out your personalize the four large squares in the corners (including Go to Jail, Free Parking, Jail, and Go), the 22 property spaces, and the secondary playing spaces (4) Railroads, 3 Chance spaces, 3 Community Chest spaces, and 3 Utility spaces).[2]Brainstorm ideas for each one and how to customize it for your theme. Remember to pick eight different colors for each of the property spaces related to medieval kingdoms or provinces. Instead of a Go to Jail and Jail space, a jungle-themed game might feature a broken jungle vine and elaborate on your theme. Write the name of your game instead of Monopoly and add visual elements if desired. If this DIY monopoly is a gift for someone's anniversary, for instance, Photoshop or paste actual photos of the couple around your customized Monopoly name. Advertisement 3Decide if you want to change any rules. Since you've already changed the board, you have the option to personalize the game play as well. For example, you can rearrange the property spaces to make it more difficult or alter how long someone remains in jail. But if you don't want to lose too much of the original game, you can print out a copy of the Monopoly template or board to sketch an outline onto paper. If you have an old Monopoly board sitting around, place a 18 by 18 inches (460mm 460mm) piece of paper on top of the board so that you can see the lines of the board so that you can see the lines of the board through the paper. Lightly trace the dimensions of each playing space and other details on the board. Alternatively, print out a blank Monopoly template online rather than tracing your own. If youre making your Monopoly board digitally with a design program like Photoshop, upload a digital Monopoly template onto the platform to create an outline of your board or draw the whole thing from scratch using a real board as a reference. There are free online programs such as Google Draw that you can use instead of buying a program. Using a computer may also allow you to mimic the traditional Monopoly fonts. However, keep in mind that the Monopoly board size is bigger than a normal printer's capacity, so you may need to split the image in your editing program to print out over several sheets of paper when it comes time for assembly. 2Add spaces and details to the outline of your board. Since you already planned out your custom spaces, as well as any other fun and thematic decorations you want to add.[3]If you havent already, use a ruler or straightedge to draw two small rectangles in the large central section of your board. Label them as Community Chest and Chance, or whatever name youre using for these cards in your personalized game. If youre making your Monopoly board by hand, use permanent markers and other art supplies to decorate the board. Add small images to match each space, using a real Monopoly board as a visual reference. If youre making your Monopoly board digitally, add text boxes and images downloaded from the internet to fill in and decorate your board. If you arent very familiar with digital programming, it may be best to stick with the handmade board.3Create a 18 by 18 inches (460mm 460mm) base for your board out of a sturdy material. Pick a sturdy material like card stock, cardboard, or weighted paper. Cut your material to 18 by 18 inches (460mm 460mm), which is about the size of a standard Monopoly board.[4] If you want your board to be foldable, carefully use an X-Acto Knife or razor blade to cut a straight line from the center point of the board to the midpoint of one side. Make sure that this material is foldable before applying your design on top. If you made your Monopoly board by hand on a piece of paper, simply glue or use double-sided tape to affix the paper board to the sturdier base. Make sure to smooth out any bubbles as soon as possible. Carefully use a razor blade or similar tool to cut a slit through the covering so that the board can fold into itself for storage.[5]If you made your Monopoly board digitally, create a PDF file of your board and print it out as a sticker at a copier store. Then, you can lay the sticker over your base. Advertisement 1Make your Chance and 16 for Community Chest. Cut out 3.25 by 2.25 inches (83mm 57mm) pieces of cardstock to create your cards, or make them digitally and print them out with an online program like Google Draw or Canva. Keep the actions on each card the same as the original Monopoly game but customize to Pall Mall," you could write "Advance to Pall Mall," you could write "A change "Pay School Fees" to "Pay for Beach Parking."Laminate your cards, if possible, so that they last longer and will be better protected. Heres a list of all of the original Chance and Community chest cards if you dont have any on hand.2Make Realty cards for each of your properties. For simplicity, use the same rent and mortgage amounts as the corresponding original cards. Make sure each property on your board has a matching card with the correct property name and color. Make your cards from the original game. You can also print directly onto card stock if you're using a template in Photoshop or Microsoft Word. For all of your cards, laminate them for longevity and better protection against infamous Monopoly feuds.3Create a unique currency for your Monopoly game. You can either buy generic or replacement money, you can draw or print it as well. Be creative with the denomination designs. For example, if you're doing a game based on Quentin Tarantino movies, you could photoshop his character's faces onto the money and add fake blood splatter for a fun effect. You can also name your bills and include that moniker on the dollars themselves. "Credits" works for video game-based Monopolies and "Bison Bucks" for a Wild West-themed game. Similar to your game cards, you can either make your Monopoly dollars by hand, using a digital tool, or by using a printable template. Advertisement 1 Make your player pieces. Plan to have about eight tokens for players to use that match your theme. Use pre-existing items around your house, or buy miniatures from a local toy store or online manufacturer. Alternatively, sculpt your miniature tokens out of clay or papier mach. Keep your items small, as the spaces are not very large. Fimo or Sculpey are two reliable and easy-to-find materials for making your own tokens. If youre making a movie-themed game, for example, you could make a tiny popcorn token, movie reel, Hollywood star, and award statue. If you're making a superhero-themed game, you can use action figures as tokens. Don't forget that you need dice as well. If you aren't going to buy or use your own, you can make a die while sculpting your other tokens. 2Build your houses and hotels. Pick something creative but easy to recreate several times since you're going to need 32 houses and 16 hotels total to accommodate for gameplay.[6] For example, if you're making a Texas-themed game, you can make the pieces look like the Alamo and an oil rig. You could always repaint old Monopoly houses and hotels in different colors to match the rest of your game's color scheme. You can make the game more complicated by making houses and hotels of different values. For example, you could construct a regular-looking home, a skyscraper, and a castle in the same game and make each of their rent payments incrementally more expensive. You dont have to stick with the original colors if you dont want to either when youre deciding how to make a Monopoly board is 19 1/2 inches (50 cm) square, but you can make your board any size you like. A bunch of students once created a Monopoly board that was 30 meters across, so if you want to beat the World record, then perhaps you can go even bigger? Youll find it easiest if you stick to the classic Monopoly board sizes, though. Thats because I already have a list of Monopoly dimensions that gives you all the exact sizes of the board, squares, cards, money, tokens, houses, and hotels in both inches and centimeters. I suggest that you follow this if you want to make everything line up perfectly. Traditionally, Monopoly boards are made of paper and cloth fibers, although you can also get some luxury wooden Monopoly boards. The easiest way to make a Monopoly board at home is from a large piece of cardboard as this is easy to cut with scissors, yet sturdy enough to stand up to some use. If you have the time and the patience, quilted Monopoly boards look absolutely stunning. But all of that embroidery is sure to take years to complete. As well as a board, youre going to need some thin card for the Chance, Community Chest, and Title Deed cards as well as paper for the cash. Youll also need some scissors, a pencil, a long ruler and a collection of colored pens, crayons or paints. Now its time to make your Monopoly board. Youll want to draw everything out neatly using a pencil and ruler, making sure the spaces are even before going over the lines with a black pen. If your board is 19 1/2 inches (50 cm), then start by drawing the corner spaces which are 2 1/2 inches (4 cm) wide. If you want something to copy, take a look at this Monopoly board template. If you have a printer at home, you may decide that you want to print the board rather than draw it out. This is simple to do across six sheets of letter paper. Once the outline of your board is ready, carefully color in the top of each space and write in the names that youve decided on. Youll also want to write the price on each space. There were two upgrades, GL/EF (elevation finder) and GL Mk.II (pictured), both improving the ability to determine a target's bearing and elevation. GL refers to the radar's ability to direct the guns onto a target, known as gun laying. The first GL sets were developed in 1936 using separate transmitters and receivers mounted on gun carriages. Several were captured in 1940, leading the Germans to believe falsely that British radar was much less and elevation measurements accurate to about a degree: this caused the number of rounds needed to destroy an aircraft to fall to 4,100, a tenfold improvement over early-war results. The Mk.II, which was able to directly guide the guns, lowered the rounds-per-kill to 2,750. About 410 Mk.Is and 1,679 Mk.IIs were produced. Or maybe you have someone in your life whos always begging to play Monopoly at your weekly game night? Either way, this is your chance to create the custom board game that you've always dreamed of. You already know the rules, so all you have to do is pick a theme and create your Monopoly board and playing piecesand with this comprehensive guide, you can make your own by following the simple set of steps below! Choose a unique theme for your game and design board spaces to match. Draw or print your spaces onto an 18in 18in (460mm 460mm) piece of paper. Paste the paper onto cardboard or an old Monopoly board. Make the Realty, Chance, and Community Chest cards.Make custom Monopoly currency or reuse the original dollars.Build your game tokens out of air-dry clay or reuse items from around the house.1Think of a unique theme for your game. Monopoly is easily customized, and all you need is an idea to get started. You can think globally, like making an ocean-themed Monopoly, or personally, like one based on a friend or the town you live in. Whatever theme you choose, name the game using the Monopoly formula, like Dog-opoly or Elvis-opoly.[1]Be careful not to be too specific. If your theme isn't broad enough, you might not have enough options to fill out all of the railroad spaces or Community Chest cards without compromising the overall theme. If youre making the game as a gift, choose a theme that relates to an interest of the recipient or just make a game for your friend Michael-opoly and design the whole board to feature important things from his life. 2Plan out your personalized playing spaces and board decorations. Youll have to personalize the four large squares in the corners (including Go to Jail, Free Parking, Jail, and Go), the 22 property spaces, and the secondary playing spaces (4 Railroads, 3 Chance spaces, 3 Community Chest spaces, and 3 Utility spaces). [2] Brainstorm ideas for each one and how to customize it for your theme. Remember to pick eight different colors for each of the property groupings. For example, Medieval-opoly might feature a broken jungle vine and a quicksand pit. Use the large space in the middle of the board to decorate and elaborate on your theme. Write the name of your game instead of Monopoly is a gift for someone's anniversary, for instance, Photoshop or paste actual photos of the couple around your customized Monopoly name. Advertisement 3Decide if you want to change any rules. Since you've already changed the property spaces to make it more difficult or alter how long someone remains in jail. But if you don't want to lose too much of the original game, you can print out a copy of the Monopoly rules online or use an old version's copy to keep in the board box. Advertisement 1Use a Monopoly template or board to sketch an outline onto paper. If you have an old Monopoly template or board to sketch an outline onto paper. If you have an old Monopoly template or board to sketch an outline onto paper. the board through the paper. Lightly trace the dimensions of each playing space and other details on the board. Alternatively, print out a blank Monopoly template online rather than tracing your own. If youre making your Monopoly template and other details on the platform to create and outline of your board or draw the whole thing from scratch using a real board as a reference. There are free online programs such as Google Draw that you can use instead of buying a program. Using a computer may also allow you to mimic the traditional Monopoly fonts. However, keep in mind that the Monopoly board size is bigger than a normal printer's capacity, so you may need to split the image in your editing program to print out over several sheets of paper when it comes time for assembly.2Add spaces and details to the outline of your designs! Use art supplies or a digital computer program to fill in the playing areas of the board. Fill in your corner spaces, color-coded property spaces, as well as any other fun and thematic decorations you want to add.[3]If you havent already, use a ruler or straightedge to draw two small rectangles in the large central section of your board. Label them as Community Chest and Chance, or whatever name youre using for these cards in your personalized game. If youre making your Monopoly board by hand, use permanent markers and other art supplies to decorate the board. Add small images to match each space, using a real Monopoly board by hand, use permanent markers and other art supplies to decorate the board. digitally, add text boxes and images downloaded from the internet to fill in and decorate your board. If you arent very familiar with digital programming, it may be best to stick with the handmade board. Screate a 18 by 18 inches (460mm 460mm) base for your board out of a sturdy material like card stock, cardboard, or weighted paper. Cut your material to 18 by 18 inches (460mm 460mm), which is about the size of a standard Monopoly board.[4] If you want your board to the midpoint of one side. Make sure that this material is foldable before applying carefully use an X-Acto Knife or razor blade to cut a straight line from the center point of the board to be foldable, carefully use an X-Acto Knife or razor blade to cut a straight line from the center point of the board to the midpoint of one side. your design on top. If you have an old Monopoly board lying around, it may be easier to use that as your base. 4Paste your paper board design onto the base. If you made your Monopoly board by hand on a piece of paper, simply glue or use double-sided tape to affix the paper board to the sturdier base. Make sure to smooth out any bubbles as soon as possible. Carefully use a razor blade or similar tool to cut a slit through the covering so that the board can fold into itself for storage.[5]If you made your Monopoly board digitally, create a PDF file of your board and print it out as a sticker at a copier store. Then, you can lay the sticker over your base. Advertisement 1Make your Chance and Community Chest cards. You need 16 cards for Chance and 16 for Community Chest. Cut out 3.25 by 2.25 inches (83mm 57mm) pieces of cardstock to create your cards, or make them digitally and print them out with an online program like Google Draw or Canva. Keep the actions on each card the same as the original Monopoly game but customize the text to fit your theme. For example, instead of the card that says "Advance to Pall Mall," you could write "Advance to Disney World" if your game is based on Florida. For Community Chest cards, you could change "Pay School Fees" to "Pay for Beach Parking." Laminate your cards, if possible, so that they last longer and will be better protected. Here's a list of all of the original Chance and Community chest cards if you dont have any on hand. 2Make Realty cards for each of your properties. For simplicity, use the same rent and mortgage amounts as the corresponding original cards. Make sure each property on your board has a matching card with the correct property name and color.Make your cards out of cardstock, or draw directly on top of old Monopoly cards from the original game.You can also print directly onto card stock if you're using a template in Photoshop or Microsoft Word.For all of your cards, laminate them for longevity and better protection against infamous Monopoly feuds.3Create a unique currency for your Monopoly game. You can either buy generic or replacement Monopoly money at a game store or online or create your own. If you don't buy replacement money, you can draw or print it as well. Be creative with the denomination designs. For example, if you're doing a game based on Quentin Tarantino movies, you could photoshop his character's faces onto the money and add fake blood splatter for a fun effect. You can also name your bills and include that moniker on the dollars themselves. "Credits" works for video game-based Monopolies and "Bison Bucks" for a Wild West-themed game. Similar to your game cards, you can either make your Monopoly dollars by hand, using a digital tool, or by using a printable template. Advertisement 1Make your player pieces. Plan to have about eight tokens for players to use that match your theme. Use pre-existing items around your house, or buy miniatures from a local toy store or online manufacturer. Alternatively, sculpt your miniature tokens out of clay or papier mach. Keep your items small, as the spaces are not very large. Fimo or Sculpey are two reliable and easy-to-find materials for making your own tokens. If youre making a movie-themed game, for example, you could make a tiny popcorn token, movie reel, Hollywood star, and award statue. If you're making a superhero-themed game, you can use action figures as tokens. Don't forget that you need dice as well. If you aren't going to buy or use your own, you can make a die while sculpting your other tokens. 2Build your houses and hotels. Pick something creative but easy to recreate several times since you're going to need 32 houses and 16 hotels total to accommodate for gameplay. [6] For example, if you're making a Texas-themed game, you can make the pieces look like the Alamo and an oil rig. You could always repaint old Monopoly houses and hotels in different colors to match the rest of your game's color scheme. You can make the game more complicated by making houses and hotels in different values. and a castle in the same game and make each of their rent payments incrementally more expensive.
