So much energy and humour coupled with a keen insight can't begin to describe the performance from this 70 year old gentleman. His voice has aged and mellowed to a way that really enhances his songs. He played a good variety of music spanning all of his long career. From his 80s classics to some of the lesser played, but brilliant deeper music from the late 70s. When he played the his signature song, Piano Man, you could hear it all the way to Scotland. It was out of this world. The band were simply brilliant. They are so talented that when one of his group stood up and sang 'Nessun Dorma', you could of heard a pin drop in Wembley Stadium. The resulting applause was like thunder that just rolled on and on. A really fantastic night out that I will remember for the rest of my life.
