The girls of Katseye are the newest ghou! kids! On Friday, Monster High released a new version of its dolls theme Fright Song, reimaged and performed by Katseye. For the music video, each member portrayed a monster inspired by their cultural background: Megan became the Huli Jing, a shape-shifting fox spirit from Chinese mythology; Lara embodied a Rakshasa, a supernatural being from Hindu lore; Yoonchae portrayed the Jangsan Beom, a white, tiger-like creature from Korean folklore; Sophia became the Manananggal, a Filipino monster that detaches its upper torso from its lower body; Manon took on the role of a sea monster; and Daniela transformed into a werewolf. The video follows the girl group strutting through the hallways of a Monster High-like school and locker room before dropping their flyest choreography to the songs catchy chorus. Monster High, Monster, Monster High/Freaky, chic n fly, Monster High, the group sings in the chorus. Where student bodies lie. Each member gets their solo lines, embodying each of their monsters with Manon singing from under water, Megan making school supplies levitate, and Megan posting in front of a full moon. be yourself, be unique, be a monster, the girls wrote on Instagram, sharing behind-the-scenes looks from the video. To celebrate the partnership, each of the girls received personalized dolls modeled after the Monster High characters they portray in Fright Song. Megan and Sophia also shared throwback photos of themselves as young girls unwrapping Monster High doll gifts and posing in character costumes, highlighting the full-circle moment of. thecollab. My Monster High doll has a bindi, says Lara in a behind-the-scenes video of the group receiving their dolls. I wish I had a doll with a bindi growing up. I loved Monster High when I was little. I had all of the dolls. The new collaboration comes just a week after the group sold out their first-ever tour, the Beautiful Chaos run, which is set for this November and December. The group will stop in cities such as Minneapolis, Toronto, Boston, New York, San Francisco, Seattle, and Los Angeles. Its us stepping into our maturity, Lara told Rolling Stone last month. I feel like this era, we have been a lot more authentically ourselves. I dont have to put on a facade of any kind when talking to anyone anymore. I think thats a beautiful thing, and you can see that more within the album. You see more of our fire. Having just released their second EP, Beautiful Chaos, and embarking on their first-ever world tour this November, global girl group KATSEYE has already conquered the world and now, theyre setting their sights on the Monster High universe. Fittingly, the groups members Daniela, Lara, Manon, Megan, Sophia and Yoonchae already resemble living dolls themselves, thanks in part to their distinct aesthetics as individuals.For EYEKONS, or fans of the group, KATSEYE is doing more than just selling out venues and climbing the charts. The six members, who represent four different countries, have always unapologetically celebrated their identities and this collaboration with Monster High is no different. In addition to remixing the Fright Song, KATSEYE assisted in the creation of their very own, one-of-a-kind dolls. Referencing mythological beings from their home countries and their defining physical traits, KATSEYEs world seamlessly flows into Monster Highs.Only a year after the groups debut, KATSEYE has already established an easily recognizable, yet ever-changing, visual identity. While their first EP Soft Is Strong harps on that bubbly, hyper-feminine aesthetic, Beautiful Chaos is gritty and subversive, with the looks turning more mature, along with all members reverting back to their natural dark hair. Unsurprisingly, beauty is an essential part of the groups ethos. After the release of their controversial Gnarly single, it became apparent that small beauty details, like long nails decked out in chunky charms, serve as a vehicle for storytelling.No matter what visual era KATSEYE is in, the members individual characteristics will always fundamentally shape who they are as a group. Lara will always be synonymous with her signature light-reflecting bindi, Manon will always sport her straight eyebrows, and Danielas voluminous hair will always show through. Coincidentally, these exact details played a big role in making the groups Monster High dolls feel like real, monster versions of themselves. Just like KATSEYEs deeply intentional visual identity, the small details are the reason the girls deeply connect to their monster personas, as well as their newfound place in the Monster High world. Ahead, we speak to all six members about teaming up with Monster High and the impact beauty has on their ethos as a group.Whats it like working with Monster High, were you fans of the dolls as kids?Daniela: When we were kids, we would play with Monster High. So its an amazing opportunity to finally be able to team up with them and have our own dolls.Sophia: My favorite part about working with Monster High is how each monster is kind of when you grow up thinking about monsters, youre scared of them, and its like theyre almost like minorities in a way. But in Monster High, theyre embraced for their uniqueness, and I think its a big part of our image as KATSEYE. Can you tell us about your Monster High alter egos and the inspiration behind them?Sophia: [My doll] is a vampire, or a Manananggal, which is a creature from lores in the Philippines. Shes kind of like a vampire she flies, and her body can separate. She uses her voice to entrance people, and her powers come alive at night. I feel very connected to her.Manon: Mine is a sea monster and I really wanted to make sure that my doll has all of my key features. So, youll see my moles on there, and my braids that I usually have. I love her.Megan: My doll is a Chinese fox spirit. Its inspired by just having fun, and being very mysterious at the same time. Kind of similar to Manons, I wanted to incorporate the things that I wear every single day, like my jade bracelet, I think my tattoo is on there as well.Lara: My doll is a modern day Rakshasa, which is basically like the devil or a villain in Indian mythology. She also has my key elements, like my nose ring and my bindi. She has, really beautiful long black hair, which I love. She has the power to [shape shift] into any form that she wants, which I think is so cool I feel so connected to her.Daniela: For my doll, Im a werewolf a fierce werewolf. I feel like what really inspired this was my hair. I had to embrace, of course, my natural curls, and I feel like thats kind of giving a werewolfy vibe. Just like big, long, thick, curly hair. Obviously I incorporated little things too, like my gold hoop earrings, because I always wear them.Yoonchae: Mine is a white tiger monster, which is a Jang San Bun a Korean monster. She has my small mole on [my] face, and theres a charm on her arm. She looks like just like me. What did the process of conceptualizing the dolls look like?Manon: The whole process was super natural and easy. We didnt even have too many notes. The team came back to us with amazing dolls. I was like, You guys killed it.Sophia: We gave them so many details about specific features that we wanted to be shown in the dolls. I showed photos I was like, I want this mole here, I want my black silky hair. And I feel like [they] took all of those details and really put them into our dolls to make our little mini monster mes.Nails play a huge role in your music videos and identity as a group, how did this come to be? Have you always been interested in nails? Lara: Ive been getting long acrylics and gel x, since I was 12 or 13. I feel so bare, and uncomfortable when I dont have nails on. We love to express the song, the vibe of whatever were doing, and how we feel about ourselves through our nails. Its such an important and beautiful detail and with our song Gnarly, our hands are shown a lot, so the nails really played a big part in that. Its just something we love to do.KATSEYE is entering a new era with Beautiful Chaos. How is this era different, visually, from Soft Is Strong?Sophia: The fans have definitely seen the kind of [beauty looks] were bringing for this EP. We all went with our dark hair this time. It has a lot more edge, a lot more rawness, a lot more grit. I feel like its the same thing with our different hairstyles for performances. Were definitely exploring a lot. When we were in our SIS era, we [all had] a specific look that we would go for I always had either straight or wavy hair. Now, were exploring different hairstyles and pushing ourselves a lot more. As well as embracing the differences that we bring with just hairstyles and outfits. It all feeds into that beautifully chaotic theme that we have going on. Since youre a global group from all over the world, do you have any favorite makeup trends from your home countries?Lara:For me, I wear a lot of kajal which is the Indian, really thick, pigmented, black waterline eyeliner. I love to put a lot around my eye, and I also love to do a dark brown lip liner.Yoonchae: Koreans love to do aegyo sal, [they] draw aegyo sal every day. I love to put blush, and different colors [under my eyes]. I feel like I always get inspired from Korean trends I always think, what spots should I put my blush in?Youre responsible for starting so many beauty trends, like Manons signature straight brows. Are there any other brow looks youve been wanting to try out?Lara: I have a little eyebrow slit that Im obsessed with. Its never going away. Its my new thing.Manon: I used to have bleached brows.Sophia: Really?Manon: Yeah, for like two weeks and then I was like mmm, lemme not. Maybe [I'll] bring them back someday.Megan: I just made my eyebrows thinner.Lara: What if we did, neon colored [eyebrows].Sophia:I know somebody was talking about a brow piercing, who was that?Lara: I want an eyebrow piercing so bad. One day.For more celebrity beauty news, read about Laneiges newest campaign featuring Sydney Sweeney. Mattel Mattel, Inc. has unveiled that Monster High and global girl group Katseye have teamed up to debut a musical collaboration: a reimaged version of the brands iconic anthem, Fright Song, now available on all major streaming and digital download platforms. Alongside the Fright Song, a high-energy music video, brings the next generation of fans into a stylishly spooky world of celebrating belonging and what makes you unique.Katseye embodies our core values of Monster High bold creativity, fearless self-expression, and a commitment to lifting up others, states Krista Berger, Senior Vice President of Barbie and Global Head of Dolls, Mattel. Katseye grew up as a fan of the brand. Were thrilled that this collaboration brings our iconic Monster High anthem to life in a whole new way, while continuing our mission to create a world where everyone is proud to be their authentic self.Originally released in 2010, Fright Song remains the No. 1 track in the Monster High brands history, with more than 87.9 million global audio streams to date. Now, Katseyes version injects fresh vocals, updated song lyrics, and an empowering tempo that celebrates individuality a core tenet of Monster High and the breakout group.Known for their breakout EP Beautiful Chaos, which charted at No. 4 on the Billboard 200, and hit singles Gnarly and Gabriela, Katseye continues their rise with the new Fright Song music video. The group, first introduced to fans through the Netflix original series Pop Star Academy, transforms into custom-created monsters inspired by each members heritage and personal strength. From a shapeshifting Rakshasa to a mystical sea creature, the video blends cinematic visuals, advanced lighting effects, and dynamic choreography to bring the monsters to life in a stylishly spine-tingling, monsterified school-day dreamscape.Monster High has always stood for celebrating what makes you unique and using your voice to remind every ghou! that they belong, which is exactly what we try to do through our music, states Katseye. Having grown up fans of Monster High dolls and content, recreating Fright Song and designing our very own monster identities has been such a dream. We hope the EYEkons feel the love and energy we poured into this project.To mark the collaboration, Monster High and Katseye designed custom one-of-a-kind dolls inspired by each Katseye member. These exclusive dolls fuse each girls signature style with her unique monster alter ego. Though the dolls are not for sale, they serve as a tribute to the creative process behind the collaboration.
