Or do I need to make sure that the inverter is turned on as well? ...does the inverter have to be turned on and selections made with grey select button?..... Any help appreciated..... Dec 1, 2018 #2 Hey .....any help appreciated..I recently got into a truck that is equipped with the thermoking tripac and inside the truck , is an thermoking inverter (ingersoll rand) 41-7784.....I have never operated one before, but I have figured out how to run the APU I can put it in "standby" .....my question is : Does the APU alone charge the truck batteries? Or do I need to make sure that the inverter is turned on and selections made with grey select button?..... Any help appreciated..... The apu charges your batteries. Your inverter drains them when using it, not by it self but when you use it to power up your coffee pot or microwave ect . ect. Your apu should kick in and start up. Thanks Driver.....I know that the APU 'S capable of charging the batteries and performs that function normally, but this inverter has a 3 part functionality.....its an inverter, converter and charger.....Im trying to determine whether the apu and this device must work in conjunction somehow since they are both installed.....or should I just continue to assume the APU is performing the charging duties.....? Thx driverdriver Thanks this. Dec 2, 2018 #4 Dec 2, 2018 #5 The model number you gave is the standard 1800 watt inverter only. Oh.....okay.....that clears up a bunch.....I thought it was equivalent to the xantrec model.....Ill focus on setting the APU for all charging responsibilities.....! Thx guys! More than 250 model year 2014-2015 Freightliner Cascadia models trucks that came factory-equipped with certain Thermo King power inverters are part of a larger voluntary recall that also affects aftermarket-installed inverters. In August, Thermo King acknowledged to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration an estimated 1,621 inverters could fail, resulting in a potential fire. These were sold to Thermo King dealers from May 15 through July 31 as a standalone option with both the Thermo King TriPac Evolution and TriPac-e Auxiliary Power Units. “The accounts of the inverter failures include reports of a ‘popping’ noise, an odor emanating from the unit, smoke, and in a few instances sparks and small flames have been reported,” Thermo King said in a letter to NHTSA. “Based upon the reports and its investigation, Thermo King believes the Thermo King branded inverters that are manufactured by Power Bright Technologies in 1100-watt, 1500-watt and 2000-watt sizes may create a potential fire hazard.” Other than damage to the inverter units, Thermo King said there have been no reports of property damage or personal injury. Between July 14 and August 14, Thermo King said it received reports of a total of 11 inverter incidents from Thermo King dealers. In most of those instances, a device such as a coffee pot or television was plugged into the inverter when the incident occurred. Thermo King has told owners of the affected devices to turn them off and discontinue their use. The owners will be provided the option of having replacement inverters installed for no charge or having the full purchase price refunded, based upon the availability of replacement inverters. Owners of the affected Freightliner Cascadia models will be notified by Daimler Trucks this month, and Thermo King will either replace the inverter free of charge or refund the full purchase price. DTNA's number for this recall is FL-668. Owners may contact Thermo King customer service at 1-866-766-2708 or Daimler Trucks North America customer service at 1-800-745-8000.
