She'll be forever cleaning her dress,” Angelique purred the words. There was a long, long silence, and then a moan started. Jane leaned her head against the door, listening as the other woman enjoyed her husband in a way that she had never done. Despite sharing a true-mate connection with her werewolf mate, there were three people in Jane's marriage. As Baron Western keeps seeking revenge for the death of his grandfather, Jane tries to navigate a tormenting relationship where her mate has no interests in, except her body. Pulled together by their true-mate bond, torn apart by his love and need for another woman, how long can Jane stand to be the unloved wife of Baron Western? Megnézem a kosaram Starting 2024, LIBRI will be transferred to Open Access on a year-by-year basis. All articles will thus immediately appear under the Creative Commons license CC-BY (authors retain rights). There will be no publication costs for the authors. The Open Access transformation is based on Subscribe-to-Open, an alternative model that enables the full Open Access transformation of journals through the continuation of existing subscriptions. The prerequisite for successful transformation is that subscriptions are continued to the same extent as before. The editors of LIBRI and the publisher De Gruyter would therefore like to thank all subscribers for their support, which has made the transformation to Open Access possible. LIBRI was established in 1950 and is a leading international scholarly journal which investigates the aspects of library and information studies from both a historical and present-day perspective and analyses the role of information and knowledge in cultural, organizational, national and international developments. LIBRI reports on current trends in library and information studies worldwide and describes their resulting transformation from the introduction of new information and communication technologies, multidisciplinary approaches, changing practices, and evolving methods. Background information and the latest research findings in library and information studies are made accessible to academics, practitioners, and a broader public. Topics that are covered include, but are not limited to: Libraries (national, public, academic, school, special, etc.) and other information environments Information and knowledge management Information behaviour Information needs, seeking, searching and use Information retrieval Emerging technologies, including AI, AR, VR etc., from an Information Science perspective Information for development (developing and industrialized countries) Indigenous knowledge Literacy (media, information, etc.) Data science, data analytics, big data and their impact on organisations (o.g., customer related data; social science perspective Digital libraries and repositories Data science, data management, data curation and virtual research environments (VRs) Information ethics, policy and law Scholarly communication Open science, open access and related topics Health information Information science Information services Information in society Electronic Data Interchange (EDI) Information organization and representation Freedom of access to information and freedom of expression Archives & preservation Cultural heritage Book and publishing theory and history LIS education International and comparative LIS research Research methodologies in LIS Theory submissions (We do not publish articles on scientometrics, bibliometrics, webometrics, altmetrics etc., as there are a number of specialist journals that does so.)
