Electro-Voice ENGINEERING DATA SENTRY IV PROFESSIONAL LOUDSPEAKER SYSTEM

OBSOLETE

DESCRIPTION AND APPLICATIONS

The Electro-Voice Sentry IV incorporates many new and innovative design ideas which represent a significant advance in state-of-the-art speaker design. The 3-way, all horn loaded system offers absolute minimum distortion through all frequencies while providing unequalled efficiency and uniformity over the entire frequency range. With high power handling capacity, extremely uniform and wide dispersion, and linear frequency response, the Sentry IV offers versatility for applications in not only audio monitoring, but in high level sound reinforcement, high level playback systems, etc.

The midrange and tweeter horn designs represent the first significantly new sectional designs in 25 years. With vertical dispersion of greater than 60-degrees at all frequencies and extremely stable horizontal dispersion at 120-degrees virtually throughout the frequency range, these horns offer a uniformity of coverage which practically eliminates "hot spots" and "dead areas" in the covered room or outdoors (See Figure 1). Totally new drivers are associated with the midrange and high-frequency components to offer both ruggedness and linear response.

The woofer section also utilizes the folded horn principle for increased efficiency and lower distortion. The design of the enclosure permits linear low-frequency response to within a few cycles of the theoretical enclosure cutoff frequency of 30 Hz. Two 12-inch cone drivers are used in the folded horn low-frequency section.

The crossover provides push clip terminals for connection of all components.

A female phone plug receptacle is provided for bypassing high-frequency input. For those who wish to use an active crossover, all high-frequency information should be routed into the crossover via this receptacle. In this way the crossover between woofer and midrange (400 Hz) is shunted.

A high-frequency roll-off attenuator is provided on the crossover which increases effective power handling capacity by smoothly attenuating tweeter input power.

would improve safe resistance to potential magnetic manipulation. This week we contacted consumers in writing who purchased this line for sure on this problem. We work with design engineers for some of the largest block companies in the world. Two weeks ago, I contacted the head of quality control in Sentry and since then I had several discussions with him on his design. drawing.
